

ABSTRACT

A lead body and method for lead body manufacture are provided having at least one conductor positioned between an inner insulator and an outer insulator wherein the outer insulator is fused to the inner insulator by heating.

- 5 Further, an insulating spacer may be provided between the conductors that may be fused to either or both of the outer insulator and the inner insulator.